This Haryana Tourism owned & operated golf course derives its nomenclature from the Aravallis—a lofty mountain range running across the state of Haryana. It is a unique geological feature, the antiquity of which adds to its magnificence.

Set-up in the year 1966, it was the first golf green to be set up in Faridabad, Haryana. The building was designed by the famous architect Joseph Allan Stein and the course design was then laid by Stephen Kay, the famous Golf architect from the U.S.A. The Golf Course was taken up by Haryana Tourism in the year 1988 and re-designed by Stephen Kay, a renowned golf architect from USA. Now the course is spread over 75 acres and has a 12 holes facility.

In the Golf course there is provision for billiards, 6 luxurious rooms and a committee room have been added for the Golf lovers. The keen golfers can make a night stay here at the lush green golf course about 30 km from Delhi and tee off early in the Morning.
